

Although the matter of locally oriented programming as presently offered is of little interest to me in the rural area where I live, the National Association of Broadcasters' effort to prevent this service on satellite radio is abysmal and discouraging. The member companies of NAB do not need less competition; they need more. I strongly support local programming on satellite, and I urge the FCC to reject the broadcasters' sad effort to quash their new competitors